FOREWORD

Why has the Oklahoma Library Commission prepared this list? To meet a real need for a guide to worthwhile books which can be read, understood and appreciated by the Boys and Girls of Oklahoma. Because of the demand from parents, teachers and librarians for such a list.

The purpose of the list is to answer such questions, as: What is the best book for a child on a given subject? Who is the author? What is the price? Where is it published? Where should it be shelved? (Full particulars are given regarding each book).

Selection of books has been given careful consideration. Books of practical information and vocational value have been given equal consideration with those of literary and cultural value. Only those are included which have been able to pass the critical test of actual use and enjoyment by Boy and Girl readers.

Authorities on children's literature have been consulted freely. Only titles which have received indorsement from several leading authorities are included in the list. It represents the collective work of many people and will be a valuable guide to the best available in children's literature.

Acknowledgments for annotations are made to the following sources: A. L. A. Booklist; Children's Catalogue, and the excellent lists of Cleveland, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pittsburg, and Wisconsin.

Approximate grades only, in which a book may have special value is indicated. Ability to understand and appreciate the printed page varies as widely among children as among adults.

School libraries of the state may obtain copies of this list for permanent use upon request of teacher or librarian. Copies will be loaned for individual use.

Publishers' prices, as given, are subject to change. Generous discounts on large orders may usually be obtained.

Use of special symbol. As an aid in selecting books for school libraries the asterisk (*) has been used to indicate titles for first purchase.

TO THE LIBRARIAN OR TEACHER

Books on this list are available for inspection through the Traveling Library service of the Oklahoma Library Commission.

The Library Commission is a department of state authorized to give advice to school, free and public libraries upon matters pertaining to library organization, and administration, and to circulate Traveling Libraries for the benefit of people within the state who are without library service.

Several thousand books are available for general reading. They may be used with, but are not intended to take the place of the school libraries which should be provided by every school district.

Traveling Libraries of twenty-five (25) volumes will be sent schools, farm clubs and other organizations of five or more members upon application.

A Community Library of from 125 to 200 volumes, intended as a nucleus for a public library, is loaned for six months. The books cover a wide range of subjects.

Individual loans of one to five volumes are sent for two weeks.

Transportation is the only expense. Books are sent collect and must be returned prepaid.

Directions for organization of school and public libraries may be obtained upon request.

Books for Blind may be borrowed by any blind person without expense for transportation.
